Prajapati has the gift of foresight; she predicts the future and so is respected by all. Siddhartha is a young and able prince; he will be the next ruler after his father. Tara is extremely beautiful, and her beauty is a great attraction to all. Buddha is honored as a god by all. Unfortunately, a wicked woman named Gajendra, one of Buddha's servants, performs a magic ceremony and gets a golden child for his aid. Tara cannot bear the harsh treatment of Gajendra and so decides to run away with her children and her father. Buddha decides to take them back. Prajapati is worried about her son's safety; her vision foretells that Gajendra will get a son to replace him. Siddhartha is treated well by Gajendra, but the king is worried about Siddhartha's safety. Tara asks her father, the King, to send her son to the jungle. So she tells her son to run away and she tells Gajendra to bring Siddhartha back. Gajendra takes Siddhartha to the forest and leaves him there.

Siddhartha tries to contact his mother and father, but Gajendra blocks all his efforts. Siddhartha is torn apart between his mother's feelings and his father's royal dignity. Gajendra's son takes Siddhartha's place and runs the kingdom. After a few years, Prajapati's vision comes true. Siddhartha is now the ruler of the kingdom. Siddhartha is lost in the forest. He tries to contact his mother and his father but is confused and unable to contact either one. Tara finds her son in the forest. Tara takes him back to the palace. The queen asks Siddhartha to take his place as the king. Tara tells her father that Siddhartha is his son. The king sends for Siddhartha to the palace. Siddhartha is overwhelmed. King Jagmohan asks Siddhartha if he is willing to be the king. Siddhartha refuses. King Jagmohan tells Siddhartha that he cannot be king unless he adopts his father's ways. But his mother has already told the king that Sidd 82157476af
